

History

Intent (curriculum design, coverage and appropriateness) Our aim of the History curriculum is to ensure that all children are inspired and curious about Britain's past and of the rest of the world. We believe high quality history lessons inspire children to want to know more about the past and to think and act as historians. Many of our lessons use an enquiry-based approach where the children are expected to think critically and be able to ask and answer questions. The children are equipped with the vocabulary that they need to become historians and to talk about the past and the passing of time. Lessons provide opportunities for children to support, evaluate and challenge their own and others' views using a range of primary and secondary sources. We believe that children will gain knowledge and skills not only through experiences in the classroom but also with use of fieldware for appropriate and challenge their own and others of the classroom but also with use of fieldware for any content of the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the classroom but also with use of fieldware for the class of the class			and Mitter.
Our aim of the History curriculum is to ensure that all children are inspired and curious about Britain's past and of the rest of the world. • We believe high quality history lessons inspire children to want to know more about the past and to think and act as historians. • Many of our lessons use an enquiry-based approach where the children are expected to think critically and be able to ask and answer questions. • The children are equipped with the vocabulary that they need to become historians and to talk about the past and the passing of time. • Lessons provide opportunities for children to support, evaluate and challenge their own and others' views using a range of primary and secondary sources. • We believe that children will gain knowledge and skills not only through experiences in the classroom but also with use of	Intent	Implementation	Impact
Our aim of the History curriculum is to ensure that all children are inspired and curious about Britain's past and of the rest of the world. • We believe high quality history lessons inspire children to want to know more about the past and to think and act as historians. • Many of our lessons use an enquiry-based approach where the children are expected to think critically and be able to ask and answer questions. • The children are equipped with the vocabulary that they need to become historians and to talk about the past and of the rest of the world. To ensure that high quality history is taking place throughout the whole school we implement a curriculum which is progressive from EYFS through to Year 6. • History lessons are planned through our termly topics with a focus on knowledge and skills. • Each unit starts with placing the historical period on a timeline. • History lessons have a strong focus on vocabulary which ensures that all children are able to talk about history using the appropriate language. • The subject leaders work closely alongside teachers to ensure that knowledge and skills within history lessons are progressive through the whole school we implement a curriculum which is progressive from EYFS through to Year 6. • History lessons are planned through our termly topics with a focus on knowledge and skills. • Each unit starts with placing the historical period on a timeline. • History lessons have a strong focus on vocabulary which ensures that all children are able to talk about history and be able to ask and answer questions. • Children will be curious about the past and want to know more. • Children will be curious about the history is taking place to know more. • Children will be curious about the past and want to know more. • Children will be curious about the know hote skill	(curriculum design, coverage and	(curriculum delivery, teaching and assessment)	(attainment and progress)
thrat all children are inspired and curious about Britain's past and of the rest of the world. • We believe high quality history lessons inspire children to want to know more about the past and to think and act as historians. • Many of our lessons use an enquiry-based approach where the children are expected to think critically and be able to ask and answer questions. • The children are equipped with the vocabulary that they need to become historians and to talk about the past and the pastsing of time. • Lessons provide opportunities for children to support, evaluate and challenge their own and others' views using a range of primary and secondary sources. • We believe that children will gain knowledge and skills not only through experiences in the classroom but also with use of	appropriateness) and progression	Our aim of the History curriculum is to ensure that all children are inspired and curious about Britain's past and of the rest of the world. • We believe high quality history lessons inspire children to want to know more about the past and to think and act as historians. • Many of our lessons use an enquiry-based approach where the children are expected to think critically and be able to ask and answer questions. • The children are equipped with the vocabulary that they need to become historians and to talk about the past and the passing of time. • Lessons provide opportunities for children to support, evaluate and challenge their own and others' views using a range of primary and secondary sources. • We believe that children will gain knowledge and skills not only through	throughout the whole school we implement a curriculum which is progressive from EYFS through to Year 6. • History lessons are planned through our termly topics with a focus on knowledge and skills. • Each unit starts with placing the historical period on a timeline. • History lessons have a strong focus on vocabulary which ensures that all children are able to talk about history using the appropriate language. • The subject leaders work closely alongside teachers to ensure that knowledge and skills within history lessons are progressive through the school. • Our monitoring system, including planning scrutiny, book looks, subject coverage checks, lesson observations and pupil conferencing will enable the curriculum leaders to check coverage	understand more about history. Children will be curious about the past and want to know more. • Children will be able to think critically about history and be able to ask and answer questions. • Children will be able to talk about history using historical language which will be built upon each year. • Children will understand and use the key skills: chronological understanding, knowledge and understanding of events in the past, historical interpretation, historical enquiry and organisation and communication. • Children's progress is tracked using the skills progression assessment records too. Any areas of